HISTORY OF THE AGARWAL COMMUNITY

Agarwal Community was originated from Maharaja Agarsen, who was born at the end of "Dwapara-yug", 5123 years ago, about 85 years before "Kalyuga" or at about 3200 BC.

According to the tradition, there existed a flourishing Janapada named Agreya whose capital was known as Agrodaka. Maharaja Agarsen was a founder of Agreya. Evidence related to this state and its rule have come to light through literature, legends and Archaeological findings such as coins. Maharaja Agarsen believed in equality of men and shared equal opportunity to all. He developed a particular kind of socialistic enlivenment in the state in which every newcomer or a person, was given a coin and one brick by every inhabitant of Agreya Janapada. This enabled him to build his own house and start some industry or trade.

This practice was based on the principle of mutual help and was the cause of all round progress of Agreya. Because of huge animal sacrifice and slaughter in the Yagnams, Maharaja Agarsen abandoned them and directed his people to adopt "ahimsa" and converted them from "Kshatriya" to "Vaisya" Community.

To make reigning easy, he divided his state into 18 parts, each one represents a powerful and intelligent man called Ganapati and treated them like his son. Thus he placed a foundation stone for a democratic rule. The people writing the following Gothras after their name are all Agarwals. They are 18 in numbers: 1. Garg 2. Goyal 3. Goyan 4. Bansal 5. Kansal, 6. Singhal, 7. Mangal, 8. Jindal, 9. Tingal, 10. Airan, 11. Dharan, 12. Madhukal, 13. Bindal, 14. Mittal, 15. Tayal, 16. Bhandal, 17. Nagai, 18. Kuchhal.

Gupt or Gupta means the most intelligent, the greatest thinker and always interested to know the inner world of human life. They also belong to Agarwal Community having one of the above Gotra. Today, the population of Agarwals in India is above four crore and most of them are in Industry, Trade and Commerce.
